WCHA.TV TAKES FANS INSIDE THE RINK ALL SEASON LONG

All 10 teams and more than 180 games will be streamed live on the new Western Collegiate Hockey Association platform

EDINA, Minn. – Sept. 30, 2014 – This season, fans of the men’s Western Collegiate Hockey Association (WCHA) can watch more than 180 of its games live and in high definition thanks to WCHA.tv, the league’s new fully integrated, digital platform announced today by Commissioner Bill Robertson.

Powered by America ONE Sports and EverSport.tv on WCHA.tv, the platform enables fans to watch all 10 conference teams in action throughout the season. Every league game – home and away – will be streamed live, along with each team’s non-conference home contests, the league’s postseason tournament and the WCHA Final Five. Each member institution will have a unique team viewing site on WCHA.tv, ensuring that fans from Fairbanks, Alaska to Bowling Green, Ohio and beyond can watch every minute of WCHA hockey this season.

“We are thrilled to bring the intensity, action and passion of WCHA hockey to our fans on a nightly basis, no matter where they might want to watch a game,” said Robertson. “WCHA.tv is a truly exciting development for the league. The partnership of America ONE Sports and EverSport.tv has produced an exceptional platform and viewing experience. College hockey fans now can watch our student-athletes and first-class institutions compete throughout the season.”

With WCHA.tv, fans can follow their team wherever they are. Each game will be available on multiple platforms, including traditional web browsers on PCs, tablets and mobile phones using the iOS and Android platforms. WCHA.tv includes responsive web technology, delivering an optimal viewing experience on any device.

“America ONE Sports, in partnership with EverSport.tv, is excited to continue our partnership with the WCHA,” said Alexander “Sandy” Brown, chief executive officer and president of America ONE Sports and ONE World Sports. “WCHA.tv will offer a first-class experience to WCHA fans around the world on every digital platform.”

Live game broadcasts, from the season's opening face-off through the raising of the Broadmoor Trophy, will be available to viewers in high-definition streaming quality through four WCHA.tv subscription packages:

- Season Pass ($160) – For less than $1 per game, fans receive live access to a minimum of 181 and a maximum of 185 WCHA games, including: Every WCHA league game, along with each team's non-conference home contests, the league's postseason tournament and the 2015 WCHA Final Five.
- Monthly Pass ($50) – Fans can watch every available game live for 30 days from the date of purchase, up until the cutoff date of February 15, 2015.
- Day Pass ($12 regular season / $15 playoffs) – Can't make it to the rink that night? Fans can watch the league's entire slate of games for any given day, with streaming beginning 10 minutes prior to face-off.
- Tournament Pass ($60) – Fans will be able to watch the best of the WCHA battle for the Broadmoor Trophy and an automatic berth to the NCAA Tournament.

The first WCHA.tv broadcast will be Friday, Oct. 3 when Alaska hosts Western Ontario in an exhibition contest. The league-opening series, which starts the quest for the MacNaughton Cup, takes place on Oct. 4 and 5 when Michigan Tech plays at Lake Superior State.
